CEFA continues to benefit from the support from our Education Partners each year. The value of student co-funding and our education aspiration enhancement programs, including our University Experience and Careers in Science Programs, is substantial:

Recipients of CEFA grants are not university students alone. Grants are awarded to students who are pursuing a broad range of post-high school aspirations and vocations including apprenticeships, certificates, diplomas, traineeships, etc. The graphs below provide a breakdown of the types of pursuits that our grant recipients are undertaking. The first graph shows all CEFA grant recipients; and the second, represents recipients in 2013 only.

2013 Recipient Pursuit Breakdown (%)

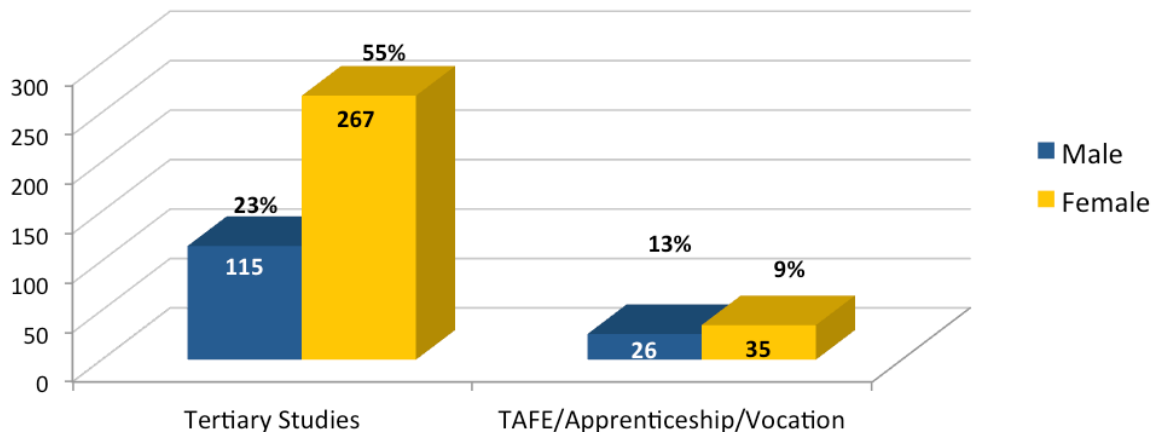

The graphs below further breaks down the pursuits of recipients according to their gender, again both in total and 2013 alone. As with 2012, the majority of grants this year were provided to female students pursuing tertiary education, with grants to male university students the next largest group:
