About the Country Education Foundation

Who we are and what we do

The Country Education Foundation (CEFA) is a national, not-for profit entity established in 2003. We have a family of 45 community-run foundations in New South Wales, the Northern Territory, Queensland and South Australia. These local education foundations provide financial and other assistance to disadvantaged young people in their communities, to help them pursue a range of post-school education and employment goals.

CEFA also has partnerships with 22 universities and tertiary institutions which have provided over $1 million in matched funding to CEFA grant recipients since 2003. CEFA receives no government grant funding; we rely on fundraising and corporate/private philanthropy to support our work.

Bridging the gap between country and city youth

Young people in rural and regional Australia face huge obstacles getting into tertiary education and jobs after high school, compared to those in city areas. And they are only half as likely to aspire to higher education as young people from metropolitan areas (ACER 2010).

Rural youth also face huge financial barriers - up to $20,000 per year for travel and living expenses - when they leave home to study, on top of their normal course fees. Accommodation shortages and rising rents in city areas make it increasingly difficult for rural students to study and work in city locations – they simply can't afford to live there.

Outstanding results

Since 1993 we've helped over 2,000 disadvantaged rural students – with grants totaling $3.6 million (including co-funding). Over 90% of students complete the course or program for which they receive assistance – well above the average for university and TAFE retention rates. Independent evaluation also shows that CEFA provides a 3:1 return on investment – i.e. for every $1 invested/donated to CEFA, $3.10 of social value is created for grant recipients and their communities (Social Ventures Australia SROI Research 2011).

Chairman's Report

Momentum in an organisation can sometimes be confused with activity. For my part there is no confusion when one reflects on the advances that the Country Education Foundation of Australia has achieved over the past 12 months. We definitely have momentum underway.

The year just departed has seen a continuing consolidation amongst those education foundations that we have been working with for some time and growth in areas that, in the past, we would have regarded as too difficult to embark upon. Perhaps a few performance figures will give substance to this claim.

Extending our reach

We now represent 45 education foundations across the Northern Territory, Queensland, New South Wales and South Australia. One of the latest foundations to be established under great fanfare was that in Alice Springs where, with strong local community support, we have embarked on an ambitious program with engagement with a community that is confronted by the realities of disenfranchised youth and despondency with regard to career prospects. If the enthusiasm of the launching committee is a harbinger of things to come there is great prospect at hand.

We continue to increase the number of grants distributed and saw a 5% increase over the previous year with a total of 386 grants in all. In dollar terms this represents an 8% growth on the previous year and totalled in excess of $400,000 with an average of $1,000 per grant. Further, our 22 education partners, representing most of the tertiary institutions within our footprint, provided an additional $225,000 in co-funding during the course of the year. In addition to this funding they provided enormous moral and practical help in demonstrating the career and advancement opportunities that are available to young regional Australians seeking to further their education.

Origin partnership

In referring earlier in my report, to the momentum of the foundation, I must record the impact that this provided, by the continuation of the partnership with the Origin Foundation over a further three years, for a contributed value of $300,000. This partnership has enabled us to position our administration, management and strategic objectives with great focus. Further, the partnership has engendered encouragement to us at a time of great economic challenge. This was reinforced by the support from individual employees of Origin Energy via their employee referral program, whereby personal donations to the Country Education Foundation totalled nearly $40,000 for the year. This is truly a genuine partnership that represents the very best of corporate philanthropy.

This year also saw the establishment of education foundations in the Great Lakes region of NSW and also the Gwydir Learning Regional Education Fund. Soon to be launched are education foundations incorporated in the regions of Shoalhaven and Macleay Valleys.

Stability and continuity

For a small organisation we are genuinely grateful to enjoy a committed Board of the Foundation supplemented on day to day matters by the Executive Committee of Julia Burton Taylor, Guy Milson and Katie Walker. This team works very powerfully with our executive team of Annabel Gay, Kate Staniforth (who joined us this year and is based in Orange) and of course Katie Walker based at Yass.

Most will now be aware that Annabel Gay has moved to Melbourne and is due to give birth later this year. Annabel has added great professional qualities to the foundation and whenever I move between communities they are inevitably complimentary about the efficient and accommodating approach she has shown to their issues at hand.

Future directions

We are currently in the process of recruiting a new Chief Executive Officer. The applications that we have received for the position are both wide-ranging and highly qualified and one can only assume reflective of the reputation that the Country Education Foundation of Australia has now established in the wider community. Indeed the wide family of individuals and philanthropic organisations that ascribe to our ambition to redress some of the natural disadvantage that rural youth finds in advancing from school to a career is what gives me confidence about our future.

We have been successful in establishing partnerships of interest between members of our smaller regional communities, philanthropic organisations that aspire for a fairer go for regional Australia and corporations that recognise the need to provide career opportunities for young Australians.

I am confident that we have passed a significant threshold point in the growth pathway and that the incoming CEO will inherit a structure capable of delivering much more.

Chief Executive Officer's Report

It has been another wonderful year for the CEFA family and our growing number of volunteers and committees across rural and regional Australia. A record 386 education grants were given out by our 45 local education foundations that work tirelessly to improve the lives of disadvantaged, young, rural and regional Australians.

Within these local education foundations we are fortunate to have many dedicated, talented and generous individuals who give their time and expertise on a voluntary basis, year after year. Many of our local committee members have been with us for well over a decade, clocking up hundreds of hours of their own time to support their local community. The fact that they are still here, encouraging and fundraising for their local youth is testament to their generosity of spirit. It also demonstrates to the strength and sustainability of CEFA and our unique model of local community support.

Support to foundations

CEFA has again marked a significant year of support provided to our family of local foundations. This supplementary funding makes a tremendous difference to the lives of the rural youth we support by further advancing their opportunities and making their goals more attainable. We are enormously grateful to our education partners and philanthropic donors for helping us to make this possible.

Education Partner Co-funding	$228,845
Education Aspiration Enhancement Programs	$116,500
External Scholarships and In-kind Support	$48,050
Additional donations to local foundations	$75,500
Total Value of Support Provided to Youth in CEFA Communities	$468,895

New foundations

These past 12 months have seen a further expansion of our CEFA family, with the establishment of four new education foundations. Gwydir, Great Lakes, Orange and the Shoalhaven are all now officially incorporated bodies and getting runs on the board for their local communities. We look forward to getting to know these new committees and supporting the work they do in their towns and regions.

Key partnerships

The financial support each education foundation is able to give to their local youth is substantially boosted by the generosity of our education partners in NSW, Qld and SA.

Grant recipients who attend any of our partner university/colleges receive extra funds from their university/college once they have commenced their studies for the year. This leveraging of local grants makes an enormous difference to the level of support we are able to extend to CEFA-sponsored students.

For most of our students, this extra funding goes towards the sizable cost of rent and travel that these rural and regional students face when they move away from home to pursue tertiary studies.

Experience projects

Special mention must go to Macquarie University, UTS, University of Canberra and the Australian National University who host CEFA students at their annual university experience programs. These programs offer a once in a lifetime opportunity for country students to experience university life and what it's like to live in a big city.

I was fortunate to have the opportunity to attend the university experience programs this year, and experience first hand the impact the experience had on all of the attending students. On each occasion, it was so heartwarming to hear from the host universities about how much they also value the programs that help to raise their profile and extend their reach into rural and regional Australia. We thank all of our education partners for the very important contribution they make to the lives of young rural and regional Australians.

Corporate and philanthropic partners

As many would be aware, CEFA does not receive government grant funding, so we rely on the generosity of our partners and supporters to fund our work in rural and regional Australia. These include corporate and philanthropic foundations as well as families and individuals. Without their support, CEFA would not exist. We were particularly delighted by the decision by our Principal Partner, the Origin Foundation to extend their support for CEFA for a further three year period.

The Origin Foundation has been – and continues to be – a generous, supportive, and interested philanthropic partner. The new partnership provides for financial assistance at both the local and national level, funding grants for individual students as well as the projects and programs provided to local foundations by CEFA, the national body.

Administration

The past year also marks the consolidation of CEFA's transition to our new location in Orange, NSW. The relocation has brought many benefits to the organisation, including reduced operational costs and the opportunity for CEFA staff to engage more closely with the activities of a local education foundation at the grass roots level.

The year also saw further changes with the departure of former CEO, Annabel Gay. Annabel has moved to Melbourne and she leaves with our very best wishes for the future. In the meantime I will be acting in the position of CEO, with the continuing support and assistance of Finance Executive, Katie Walker and the CEFA Executive Committee – Nick and Julia Burton Taylor, Guy Milson and Katie Walker.

The team will continue to be supported on a day to day basis by our pro bono partners, Boyce Chartered Accountants. In particular, our key contacts at Boyce, Beth Hoskins and Rebecca Duffy provide an enormous amount of assistance to the organisation. We are enormously grateful for their continuing advice and support.

Kate Staniforth
Acting Chief Executive
